According to Officer B, the Subject advised the officers that his leg was broken and asked for a Rescue Ambulance (RA) and supervisor. Officer A requested an RA and a supervisor to respond.

Officer A stated that the want/warrant check revealed that the Subject was on parole for Criminal Threats. Officer A made the decision to keep the Subject handcuffed, waiting for a response from CD to determine if there was a victim of a battery in the area. Officer A stated he informed the Subject approximately four or five times that he was going to be released once the officers finished completing their investigation in an effort to keep the Subject calm.

Officers E and F arrived to assist with the investigation.

Officer A stated that he wanted to put the Subject on the ground and use the ground as a controlling agent to prevent the Subject from kicking, head butting or spitting again. The Subject landed face down on his chest.

Once on the ground, Officer A stated he used his body weight to control the Subject’s upper left side while on the ground, by placing his right knee on the Subject’s back. Officer A placed his right hand on the Subject’s head, turning it away from himself, so the Subject could not spit on him again. Officer E used his body weight to control the Subject’s upper right side by pushing down on his upper back with his hands. Officer B held the Subject’s right wrist behind his back, and Officer F held the Subject’s legs down with his hands. Los Angeles Board of Police Commissioners’ Findings

The BOPC reviews each Categorical Use of Force incident based upon the totality of the circumstances, namely all of the facts, evidence, statements and all other pertinent material relating to the particular incident. In every case, the BOPC makes specific findings in three areas: Tactics of the involved officer(s); Drawing/Exhibiting/Holstering of a weapon by any involved officer(s); and the Use of Force by any involved officer(s). All incidents are evaluated to identify areas where involved officers can benefit from a tactical debriefing to improve their response to future tactical situations. This is an effort to ensure that all officers benefit from the critical analysis that is applied to each incident as it is reviewed by various levels within the Department and by the BOPC. Based on the BOPC’s review of the instant case, the BOPC made the following findings.

A. Tactics

   The BOPC found Officers A, B, E, and F’s tactics to warrant a Tactical Debrief.

B. Non-Lethal Use of Force

   The BOPC found Officers A, B, E, and F’s non-lethal use of force to be in policy.

Basis for Findings

Detention

- The officers responded to a an emergency radio call of a man who was standing in the middle of the traffic and jumping on moving vehicles. Upon arrival, they observed a person matching the description of the Subject and detained him. The officers’ actions were appropriate and within Department policies and procedures.

Tactical De-Escalation

- Tactical de-escalation does not require that an officer compromise his or her safety or increase the risk of physical harm to the public. De-escalation techniques should only be used when it is safe and prudent to do so.
In this case, the officers responded to a radio call, located the Subject and took him into custody without incident. While waiting for a supervisor and a RA to arrive, the Subject became agitated and verbally abusive. The officers utilized various verbal techniques and limited their physical contact with the Subject in an attempt de-escalate the situation and calm the Subject. The Subject then turned and spat on one of the officers. The officers then utilized various non-lethal force options to stop the Subject’s actions from continuing.

A. Tactics

- In its analysis of this incident, the BOPC identified the following tactical considerations:

  1. Maintaining Control of a Handcuffed Subject

     The investigation revealed that the Subject turned and faced the officers during the detention. The officers were reminded of the importance of maintaining a handcuffed Subject in a position of tactical disadvantage during a detention to ensure the best tactical advantage for the officers when feasible.

- The evaluation of tactics requires that consideration be given to the fact that officers are forced to make split-second decisions under very stressful and dynamic circumstances. Tactics are conceptual and intended to be flexible and incident specific, which requires that each incident be looked at objectively and the tactics be evaluated based on the totality of the circumstances.

Each tactical incident merits a comprehensive debriefing. In this case, there were identified areas where improvement could be made and a Tactical Debrief is the appropriate forum for the involved personnel to review and discuss the incident and individual actions that took place during this incident.

In conclusion, the BOPC found Officers A, B, E, and F’s tactics to warrant a Tactical Debrief.

B. Non-Lethal Use of Force

- Officer A – Firm Grip, Takedown, and Bodyweight.

According to Officer A, he grabbed the Subject’s left arm with a firm grip while Officer E did the same on the Subject’s right side. Officer A then placed his right leg in front of the Subject to conduct a takedown and move the Subject to the ground. Once the Subject was on the ground, he used his right knee to apply body weight to the Subject’s left upper back area while holding his head on the ground to prevent him from spitting at the officers.
• Officer B – Takedown and Bodyweight.

According to Officer B, he grabbed the Subject’s shoulder area and pushed him to the ground. While on the ground, Officer B transitioned to the Subject’s right side and placed his left hand on the Subject’s right wrist and his right hand on the Subject’s right shoulder area to control him. Officer B also utilized his left knee to apply bodyweight on the Subject’s right buttocks to hold him down.

• Officer E – Firm Grip, Takedown, and Bodyweight.

According to Officer E, he placed his right hand on the Subject’s right elbow and his left hand on the Subject’s upper back area and guided the Subjects’ head and back downward to prevent him from spitting on any other officers. He noticed that the Subject started to go down, so he guided him to the ground. Once on the ground, he used his right knee to apply bodyweight on the Subject’s mid lower back area and placed his left forearm on the Subject’s shoulder blade area to hold his body down.

• Officer F – Bodyweight.

According to Officer F, he observed that the officers had control of the Subject’s upper body, so he grabbed the Subject’s legs and applied bodyweight to prevent him from kicking or moving.

Based on the totality of the circumstances, the BOPC concluded that an officer with similar training and experience as Officers A, B, E and F, while faced with similar circumstances, would believe that the same application of non-lethal force would be reasonable to overcome the Subject’s resistance.

Therefore, the BOPC found Officers A, B, E, and F’s non-lethal use of force to be objectively reasonable and in policy.
