LOS ANGELES POLICE

VOLUME LIII NO. 9

s we move into the last half of 2007, I want to update you on the progress of our number one Department goal, reducing crime and the fear of crime. At the beginning of the year, I announced that after four straight years of crime reductions, we could achieve another 5-percent drop during the first six months of 2007. While some questioned that strategy, I never doubted your ability and desire to prove the critics wrong. At a recent news conference with Mayor Villaraigosa, I was able to announce that as of June 30^{th} , all Part One crime categories, with the exception of Burglary Theft from Vehicles, are down, and some are down significantly.

Ithin weeks of the incident in MacArthur Park on May 1st, the new Incident Management and Training Bureau (IMTB,) was created and implemented. Led by Deputy Chief Michael Hillmann, IMTB has been working on its most urgent order of business, 21st Century Mobile Field Force Doctrine Training, ever since

Designed to provide modern crowd management training to all Department uniform personnel, the training sessions are being conducted by Area at the Joint Forces

Training Base in Los Alamitos. The day of training is information-rich and consists of 3.5 hours of classroom instruction and 5.5 hours of practical application in the field.

The classroom lecture portion takes place in the facility's auditorium. Some of the topics covered include crowd management and control strategies, public assemblies and the First Amendment, legal consequences of unlawful assemblies and failure to disperse, psychological influences on crowd behavior, and Use of Force policy and scenarios. Speakers in the classroom session have included Deputy Chief Hillmann, Captain John Incontro and Sergeant Timothy Colomey.

that hard work, dedication, and consistent, compassionate and constitutional policing have made the City of Los Angeles a safer place to work and live in, and to visit.

When I announced the good news, I was able to share some remarkable examples of lives that have been saved. Homicides had dropped a total of 21%, which meant 50 lives were saved citywide during the first six months of this year, compared to

The practical exercises are conducted in the residential section of the base, which is currently not in regular use. A neighborhood-like setting consisting of abandoned housing structures, this area is isolated from the working areas of the base, offering an entire "community" of streets on which to conduct the tactical exercises. Thiscurriculum consists of arrest and control tactics, dismounted squad formations, mobile tactics, and mass arrest procedures and processing.

This training day is mandatory for all officers, supervisors and command officers. All Areas have been scheduled and participants can expect to receive scheduling information from their Commanding Officers. Thus far, Central, Hollywood, Rampart and West Los Angeles Areas have received their training.

Participants are encouraged to dress comfortably and wear sunscreen, as the afternoon is spent in the outdoors. Cold drinks are response to Mobile Field Force Doctrine Training has been very enthusiastic, with officers remarking the training in the field, in particular, was "the fun part," and "just like the old days." In addition to being a valuable learning experience, it is also an opportunity for Area personnel to spend a day together and enjoy the camaraderie.

the same time period in 2006. While the numbers look good on paper, and make for positive headlines, the crime reductions restore hope and show that positive change can take place in our communities. I commend you for not only protecting and serving, but for helping to restore faith among a weary and uncertain public.

With these encouraging declines in crime, residents of L.A. began their summer with good news, and we have been able to feel a sense of pride in a job well done. Naturally, however, the work of any police force is never done. We still have a way to go to deliver on our goal of a total 5% reduction by the end of the year. Simply put: keep doing what you're doing. Our declining crime levels are the product of strategic, professional, dedicated police work, and evidence of our commitment to the communities we serve.

Moving on to another matter, I began this message with a reference to the Six-Month Crime Update news conference. It was the media that communicated the good news of all of your hard work. We need the media to tell our stories, good and bad. It is up to each and every one of us to work with the media when we are called upon to do so.

Since the incident at MacArthur Park, the Department has been examining our protocols with respect to the media and looking at how best to work with them while at the same time performing our duties protecting the people of Los Angeles. We have been conducting this examination in a number of different ways, some of which have included:

- Meeting with media representatives on the Sunday following the May Day Rally to discuss what occurred in MacArthur Park, and what immediate changes the Department should consider making with regards to policing public demonstrations and protecting the First Amendment rights of the media.
- Meeting with representatives from the Radio & Television News Association of Southern California to discuss issues

- of concern to their membership, particularly media access at crime scenes and media credentialing.
- Hosting a gathering of managers of local television and radio stations, major print publications, wire services, and network news bureaus to discuss the events of May Day and to discuss ways to train together and improve the working relationship between Department personnel and journalists.
- Reviewing the Crespo Decision, the settlement agreement between the City of Los Angeles and members of the media regarding the media's right to cover First Amendment-protected demonstrations and rallies.

LAPD Officers Save the Life of an 18-Year-Old Girl in Full Cardiac Arrest

Responding to a Domestic Violence radio call near the intersection of Martin Luther King and Crenshaw Boulevards on Saturday, July 28, 2007, at around 1:15 p.m., Southwest Area Community Police Station Sergeant Adrian Moody, Officer John Biondo and Officer Daniel Jara attempted to diffuse the situation. While the officers were at the scene, an 18 year-old female, unrelated to the call for service, went into full cardiac arrest. The officers rushed to the girl's aid and found that she had no pulse and was not breathing.

Without hesitation or protective medical supplies, the officers quickly initiated Cardiac Pulmonary Resuscitation. After several attempts to revitalize the girl, the officers were finally able to re-establish her pulse and breathing. The officers stabilized the girl until paramedics arrived and transported her to a local hospital where she recovered.

As officers often times receive calls after injuries have occurred, Officer Biondo said that it was very gratifying to be able to be there for the young girl and assist her. Humble and modest, the officer made light of their heroic actions by stating they only did what anyone else would have done.

promote independent civilian oversight and reform of the Department," continued President Pacheco. "I want to thank John Mack for his leadership and vision as the Commission's past President."

President Pacheco is a partner with the international law firm of Proskauer Rose. He is Deputy Chair of his firm's Corporate Defense and Investigation's practice group. For approximately five years, President Pacheco served as an Assistant United States Attorney for the Central District of California. President Pacheco graduated from Princeton University with a B.A. degree in History, and from the University of Michigan Law School with a J.D.

Our findings from this period of examination have been helpful and informative. We have made some changes, and many more are in the works. Among these changes:

- Public Information Officers (PIO) are to be clearly identifiable at events. We have begun using LAPD PIObranded vests to visibly identify PIOs at gatherings. On sight, a member of the media can now easily recognize and locate a PIO.
- In the event of unlawful assembly, we must designate a media viewing area in the immediate vicinity in order for the media to witness, report, and record the gathering for their organizations.

 Training Division is modifying and improving modern media relations training for recruits and tailoring it for the post-MacArthur Park era.

Additionally, the Public Information Office participated in the training sessions conducted for both Metro Division and Command Staff, updating both groups on current media relations principles and techniques. We are looking into updating the training at supervisor schools and Watch Commanders' schools, and we are considering bringing the media in to participate in future sessions.

The media response to our outreach has been positive.

Members of the media have been very generous of themselves and their time, and many have indicated an interest in participating in some of our future training sessions.

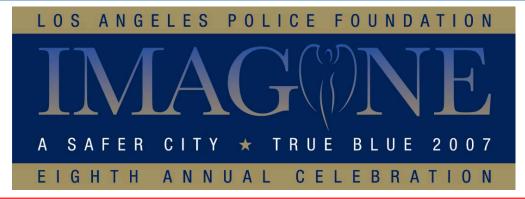

What is now clearer than ever is we must have a positive working relationship with the media, and we must never breach this relationship. Understand the media is not our enemy and, in many instances, they are critical to our success. The media is our single best vehicle for informing the public and for appealing to the public on our behalf when we need information. Many crimes have been solved as a result of media attention.

Every contact with the media, and in particular that first contact, should be a positive one. This is extremely important at crime scenes. The media is not to be artificially barred from covering news, ever. They have the right to be in any area where the public is allowed to be. The media has a job to do and we have to let them.

Lastly, the key for success with the media lies in communication. When working with the media, do what is possible to facilitate their needs. In maintaining this relationship and keeping it healthy, our work can only be positively impacted. In facilitating the needs of the media, you facilitate the needs of the Department.

Nobody knows the amount of pressure that comes with being a cop more than I do. We are asked to do work that is dangerous and are often second-guessed. We are constantly under a media microscope and are criticized after the fact for life and death decisions. I am asking you to make our crime numbers drop further and perform the myriad other aspects of your job to Department standards, all while remaining mediafriendly at any given moment. I know I am asking a lot, but this is what comes with being a member of this great organization, protecting and serving our city. I know of no other group of people better equipped or more capable of doing so. \square

2007 Women's Leadership Conference

nce again, the Los Angeles Police Department will be presenting its Women's Leadership Conference on Wednesday, October 24, 2007, at the Hilton Los Angeles Hotel in Universal
City between 7:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m.
The conference whose theme is "Leadership through Vision" was started in 1999 to assist, encourage, and support female Department employees in promoting to leadership positions.

Attendees will be given the opportunity to identify challenges and obstacles in their promotional efforts and to identify topics that would prove useful in their career development. Guest speakers from across the country will be on hand to discuss the rewards and challenges of becoming a leader.

Conference attendance has been expanded to include female civilian and male employees. This year's event will accommodate over 1,000 Department sworn and civilian personnel.

Pre-registration is mandatory. For more information regarding the event, please contact Sergeant John Vasquez, Office of Support Services, at (213) 473-6635. □

24th Annual National Night Out

ngelenos across the City joined the Los Angeles Police Department and the National Association of Town Watch, as well as hundreds of other communities throughout the nation to participate in the 24th Annual National Night Out on the evening of Tuesday, August 7, 2007. Community members united with their neighbors and area police stations in an effort to fight crime and take back their streets.

Conceived in 1984, the National Association of Town Watch introduced National Night Out as a means to promote policecommunity partnerships, crime prevention, and neighborhood camaraderie. Traditionally, "light on" and front porch vigils have been ways

The Department hosted a variety of activities throughout the City, including candlelight vigils, peace marches, community barbecues, meetings and rallies. Also joining in the festivities were Mayor Antonio Villaraigosa, CouncilmemberTom LaBonge, Councilmember Ed P. Reves, Councilmember Herb Wesson and Council President Eric Garcetti.

RECENT ACTIONS BY THE POLICE COMMISSION

JULY 10 The Commission received a briefing on the events that occurred at Leimert Park on June 23rd. Tension grew throughout the day between the two groups who were there to protest on opposing views on immigration. Eventually officers formed a line between the two groups to maintain safety.

> Chief Michael Hillmann provided an overview of the 21st Century Mobile Field Force Training to the Commissioners.

JULY31: The Commission unanimously elected Anthony Pacheco to the post of President, and John W. Mack to the post of Vice President, All Commissioners thanked Commissioners Mack and Skobin for their service during the last two years as President and Vice President, respectively. The Commission asked the Department to
